

Abstract

An image forming system and an associated method for correcting ink droplet placement errors across a printhead. By creating an ink droplet characterization of the 5 printhead, the image forming system is able to time the firing of printhead ink ejectors to avoid drop placement errors caused by ink ejector velocity variations or printhead alignment errors.